Saturday, August 3. 1717.

THE following Address was presented to His Majesty by Samuel Molyneux and Henry Cartwright, Esq; Members of Parliament, introduced by the Right Honourable the Earl of Radnor.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty.
The humble Address of the Mayor and Free Burgesses of the Corporation of Boffing in Tentagell in Cornwall.

May it please your Majesty,

While we reflect upon the manifold Blessings of your Majesty's auspicious Reign, and have the Pleasure of seeing our Religious and Civil Interests flourish, the Honour of the Nation retriev'd, our Commerce reviv'd, and your Majesty's paternal Care for the Safety and Happiness of your People so gloriously crown'd with Success Abroad, your Kingdoms in the mean time enjoying a profound Peace, by the Prudent and Mild Administration of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales; we adore the gracious Hand of Providence upon us, and with the sincerest Joy Congratulate your Majesty's safe Arrival, as a Confirmation of all those Blessings to us.

But we cannot sufficiently express our Indignation, at the ungrateful and impious Behaviour of a desperate Party still among us, whom though your Sword has once conquered, yet neither your Justice could deter, nor your unexampled Clemency dissuade from engaging afresh, by the Assistance of unprovok'd Foreigners, to make their Native Country a Scene of Blood, Confusion and Ruin.

And therefore we think ourselves oblig'd by all the Motives of Duty, Interest, and Gratitude, humbly to assure your Majesty, that we are resolv'd and will be always ready to shew our Detestation of such rebellious Practices, by venturing, and if Occasion be, by sacrificing our Lives and Fortunes in Defence of your Majesty's Rightful and Lawful Title to the Imperial Crown of these Realms against all Opposers and Pretenders whatsoever.

Copenhagen, July 31. We have received neither Express nor Post from Norway since our last. But two Days ago an English Frigate arrived in this Port from Staverne, the Captain whereof said as soon as he landed, that he met a Bark in his Way, upon which there was an Express to the King with the News, that M. Tordenschiold had oblig'd the Enemy's Flotilla to retire into Gottemburg, and that he had ruin'd the Bridge at Swinesund, and overthrown the great Battery there, by the Shot from his Prahms; and that he had received two slight Wounds in that Expedition, whereof one in the Foot, and the other in the Shoulder. In the mean time Letters from Court make no Mention of this Action, but 'tis suppos'd this Express might not be arriv'd when the Post from thence came away. Admiral Scheffed was Yesterday on board that English Captain, who told him the same thing. The Transport Ships are unmoor'd, all their Provisions are on board, and Yesterday the General Officers, Colonels, and their Subalterns, were ordered to put their Baggage aboard, the Ships being to sail forthwith. The Confederate Fleet lyes still, but our Cruizers swarm in the Baltick, who roam every where to cut off intirely, if possible, the Enemy's Trade.

London, August 3.

We hear that his Majesty has sent Order to Admiral Byng, to return home with the Men of War under his Command, except Ten, which join'd with the Danes, will be sufficient to keep the Swedish Fleet shut up in their Ports.

Abstract of a Letter from Tunbridge.

Tunbridge Wells, Aug. 1. 1717.

Sir,
AS this is a Day in which every true Briton's Heart is warm'd with Gladness for the happy Accession of our rightful Sovereign King George to the Throne of his Ancestors, so I doubt not but you will have many Accounts of the great Joy that is express'd by his Majesty's loyal Subjects in the several Parts of his Majesty's Dominions, which will deserve to be published in your Paper, so well calculated to promote true Loyalty and Affection to his Majesty's Person and Government.

Among the many of your Well-wishers, I cannot forbear sending you an Account of the Loyal Behaviour of the Gentlemen at this Place; but particularly of Sir Harcourt Masters, to whose Zeal and Ingenuity it is in a great Measure owing that the Rejoicings at this Place were so uniform and regular; and I cannot but congratulate my Fellow Citizens of London upon the happy Choice of so worthy a Patriot of their Country, to be one of their Sheriffs.

Sir Harcourt himself having design'd the Bonfire, did, to please the Curiosity of the Gentlemen and Ladies, give Directions for the making of a Model, which was proportioned to the Bonfire as Inches are to Feet. This Model was expos'd to every Body's View on the Tuesday and Wednesday before upon the Walks; and on Wednesday Morning the Bonfire began to be built, which was 50 Foot in Height, and 20 Diameter, going up in the exact Form of a Circular Pyramid, with a Pitch Barrel and a Scarlet Flag on the Top. The Flag was Scarlet in Conformity to the Colour of the Ribbons worn this Day, which Colour was chosen as betokening Victory. The Bonfire contain'd 30 Load of Faggots and Cordwood, with a sufficient Quantity of Timber to form the Regularity of the Building. In the mean time, to make the Rejoicing compleat, Sir Harcourt took Care to procure 11 Pieces of Cannon, which were planted near the Bonfire, and also a large Quantity of Wine and Beer. This Day things being brought into Order, his Grace the Duke of Marlborough and the principal Gentlemen had an Entertainment at the Fishpond. In the Evening the Company walk'd from the Wells to the Queen's Walk, with the Musick playing before them, where the Bonfire was made, and upon Lighting of it the following Healths were drank.

First Heath. Prosperity, a long Life and Reign to our Sovereign Lord King George, at which were Fired 11 Guns. Second. A Health to their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, 9 Guns. Third. Prosperity to the Churches of Great Britain and Ireland, and the Protestant Interest and Religion, 9 Guns. Fourth. Prince Frederick, and the rest of the Royal Issue, 9 Guns. Five. The Lords and others of his Majesty's most Honourable the Privy Council, 9 Guns. Sixth. The most noble John Duke of Marlborough, 7 Guns.

The

The Zeal of the Gentlemen appeared very much in their freely contributing towards the Expence; and after the whole was concluded, returned home with much Satisfaction.

I must not forget to tell you, that Abundance of fine Ladies are here, who have obliged the Day with a very gay and handsome Dress, and made a fine Appearance at the Ball.

This is a Relation of the Rejoicing here, which was very great, and deserves a Place in your Paper. I am, Sir, Yours, &c.
